A ONE DAY WORKSHOP FEATURING

Tony Aquino

Technical Director of Van Aken International, Kato Polyclay

You will view an unprecedented humorous power point presentation titled "I DID MY RESEARCH". This presentation consists of 50 plus slides that covers the history of polymer clay from Ancient Greece to present times. Along the way you will discover how polymer clay has influenced historical icons such as Plato, Marco Polo, George Washington, and Gandhi to name a few. You will also see how polymer clay was involved in the entertainment world, with guaranteed laughs.

After the presentation you will learn how the flash cure surface treatment is used to make realistic faux rocks using scrap clay. With this technique we will make faux stone photo pendants. If you have always wondered what to make for male family members and friends this is it. You will also learn other uses for this application.

Kato Polypaste and Kato Concentrates are fairly new products that you will be sampled with. Different uses of these products will be discussed and demonstrated.

If time permits you will learn how to make reflective faux glass using Kato Liquid Colors. All clay materials will be supplied, all you will need to bring are your basic clay tools and supplies.

Having worked in the arts and crafts world for over 30 years, Tony has been involved in the formulation of a wide range of products. He has taken the time to create with them and experience their performance. He has found polymer clay to be uniquely interesting with unlimited possibilities. He worked for Conklin-Fenstermaker, owners of Old World Art (importers of gold leaf and other products), as well as Delta Technical Coatings, makers of Ceramcoat and Shiva paints and other art mediums. In 1990 he joined Van Aken as Technical Director.
