

Conquering Translucents

A Workshop with Ginger Davis Allman

Are you captivated by images of ethereal and delicate translucent polymer clay but struggle to get those results yourself? In this two day class, you'll learn how to choose the right type of translucent clay for your project, and explore how to condition, color, shape, and bake it in ways that will give you the best results. We'll even talk about ways to make translucent polymer clay look like various types of glass. You will work through several projects that demonstrate your new ability to conquer the challenges of translucent polymer clay.
