

NIKOLINA OTRZAN

TEMPLATES, TEXTURES, SURFACE TECHNIQUES

DALLAS, TEXAS MARCH 16-17, 2019

Out of pure curiosity, I first dove into the world of polymer clay in the late 1990s. Although I had no previous art or craft experience, I was simply drawn to the range of colors and the potential to make things for myself. Soon I found I had a new, addictive hobby. The more I played with polymer, the more I wanted to discover. After a few starts and stops, I realized that I was very passionate about working with clay and quit my day job in sports to continue my exploration of the material. It proved to be the right decision.

I like to experiment and take time to explore different techniques, which I use as tools to realize my ideas. I love color, pattern, shape, and texture and I keep my eyes wide open for anything that will inspire me.
